Our endocrine systems control all of our metabolic and hormonal functions.

What happens when it is disrupted??

Is homeopathy a reliable intervention? YES!

In this day long presentation with Karen Allen CCH, we will learn from the words of clients. Join us to look through the windows of 5 cases - two that failed and three that thrived. These cases will illustrate the thumbprint of endocrine disturbance, illuminate patterns of endocrine sarcodes, and demonstrate strategies for dosing and case management.

Barnie and Betty who could not have a baby: Through the journey of these failed cases, we consider environmental toxins in the reproductive system, and methods to address them. Like many of our clients, Barnie and Betty showed complex miasmatic inheritance, sequelae of disease and much medical intervention prior to coming to homeopathy. Through 20 months of homeopathic work, we look at the most likely successful and unsuccessful opportunities for intervention and correction.

Molly whose health deteriorated after Mirena: While acknowledging the incredible benefit of contraception in general (not every woman is ready to have 13 children through her reproductive life!!), it is not without biological costs. Sequelae can appear in seemingly unrelated body systems. For this woman, the Mirena device placement was followed by food allergies, fibrosis, insomnia, and panic attacks. We will cover the timeline, interventions and successful outcome for this client.

Hannah with 'hemorrhage and hot flushes from hell': Many perimenopausal women arrive at our office when the change of life is not changing smoothly. Hannah was anemic, exhausted, and unstable. We will look at very surprising events in her case as her body repaired and transitioned into healthy menopause.

Ingrid and Insomnia: Years of not sleeping followed an era of eating disorder... and there was also those very disruptive sexual symptoms that she was reticent to discuss but intrusive in the case... This client benefited from a combination of constitutional care and endocrine sarcodes in a way that expands our understanding of materia medica.

Homeopathy offers so much potential for our clients. Whether you are early in your practice or have been working with clients for decades, there will be practical guidance that you can take away and implement for the benefit of your clients.

Karen Allen, CCH was drawn to homeopathy after seeing a remarkable response in an illness for one of her children; she enrolled and graduated from Pacific Academy of Homeopathy in 1994. In practice, her focus of interest is in reproductive and endocrine health issues, especially those that impact fertility. She was formerly an adjunct faculty member at Bastyr University's homeopathy department. She is now on the faculty for the American Medical College of Homeopathy at the Phoenix Institute of Herbal Medicine and Acupuncture teaching homeopathic philosophy and professional ethics.

Karen's teaching is known for her engaging style and case based material. She presents at Alternative Medicine and Homeopathic conferences around the world, with a focus on reproductive issues and fertility. Karen draws frequently on the works of the homeopathic masters that preceded us, especially the work of Farrington, Compton-Burnett, Minton, Guernsey, Clarke, Grimmer and Foubister. She believes strongly that homeopathy can be implemented most successfully when the practitioner is able to work effectively at every level from the smallest tissue to the broadest family line or epidemic.

Karen has particular interests in clinical effectiveness research for integrative healthcare modalities, and in the infrastructure of emerging health professions. Her commitment to the growth of the homeopathic profession has encouraged her service work. She is a former board member and past president of the Council for Homeopathic Certification, former education director for Homeopaths Without Borders, and past representative of the National Center for Homeopathy as a Partner for Health with the Integrative Healthcare Policy Consortium. She currently sits on the National Biofield Committee for the Integrative Health Policy Consortium. She is the director of TrinityHealthHub.com, an online resource for education, mentoring, connection and advocacy for homeopaths and those who use homeopathy.
